Job Description

The job requires the candidate for the following roles:

Shoonya is looking for a Chief Technology Officer (CTO), who'll be a part of the founding team, to provide sound technical leadership in all aspects of our business. You will be responsible for developing our end-to-end technology platform to help us achieve our vision of a zero-waste future. As you will be a part of the leadership team, strategic thinking and a strong business acumen are essential in this role.

Roles & Responsibilities

- Develop technology vision and roadmap of the company's strategy to ensure alignment with its business goals.
- Lead all phases of the product development lifecycle, including analysis, design, testing, and integration.
- Collaborate closely with product management, sales, engineering, operations, finance, vendors, customers, and industry experts to spearhead market-driven technology strategies.
- Identify and implement new technologies that yield competitive advantage.
- Monitor system infrastructure to ensure functionality, efficiency, and scalability.
- Embed sustainable and socially responsible practices in the product lifecycle.
- Build quality assurance and data protection processes.
- Monitor KPIs and IT budgets to assess technological performance.
- Communicate technology strategy to partners and investors.
